CPD Seminar on The Economy and Development of the Greater Bay Area
Wednesday, 29 August 2018

In March 2017, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang announced a plan for the “development of a city cluster in the Guangdong- Hong Kong- Macau Greater Bay Area (粵港澳大灣區)”. The plan is part of China’s urbanization initiative, to have clusters leveraging the strength of first-tier cities to boost economic growth in the zone. The 56,500 square kilometre Bay Area encompasses 11 cities (9+2) – Hong Kong, Macao, Guangzhou, Shenzhen, Zhuhai, Foshan, Zhongshan, Dongguan, Huizhou, Jiangmen and Zhaoqing.

The Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macau Greater Bay Area is advancing economic growth, education and financial hubs, etc., and it is comparable with the bay areas of San Francisco, New York and Tokyo. The area in Tokyo covers 9,076 sq km and is home to 31 million people, while the San Francisco Bay Area covers 18,000 sq km and has a population of 7.6 million. The combined GDP of China’s Bay Area reached US$1.36 trillion in 2016, with an estimated population of 66.71 million. Four of the world’s top 100 universities and 16 of the Top 500 companies are located in the area. There were around 40 participants attended this seminar.
